Notification of Purchase of Shares of eAccess Ltd.
(Conversion to Consolidated Subsidiary)

In a meeting of the Board of Directors today, Yahoo Japan Corporation decided to purchase 99.68%*<sup>1</sup> of the shares (33.29% of the voting shares) of eAccess Ltd. (Head office: Minato-ku, Tokyo; Representative Director and President: Eric Gan, hereinafter eAccess) from SoftBank Corp. (Head office: Minato-ku, Tokyo; Chairman and CEO: Masayoshi Son, hereinafter SoftBank) for 324 billion yen. Details are as follows.

eAccess is scheduled to merge with WILLCOM, Inc. (Head office: Minato-ku, Tokyo; Representative Director and CEO: Ken Miyauchi, hereinafter WILLCOM), effective June 1, 2014. Yahoo Japan Corporation's purchase of the shares of eAccess is conditional on the merger going through.

Note 1: The shareholding ratio represents the ownership ratio of the sum of the issued and outstanding Class A shares (non-voting) and Class B shares (voting) .

I. Reasons for Purchase of Shares

With Japan's largest portal site Yahoo! JAPAN at the core of its operations, Yahoo Japan Corporation has been endeavoring to contribute to the further development of society by leveraging its information technology, acting as a "problem-solving engine" to provide solutions to issues in people's everyday lives and society. Since the beginning of operations, the Company has posted growth in revenue and profits for 16 consecutive years. In addition, the Company renewed its management system in 2012, targeting further expansion and improvement in services and growth in earnings in the fields of smartphones and tablets.

The Company will purchase the shares of the new company resulting from the merger of eAccess and WILLCOM in June for the purpose of stimulating further rapid growth in Internet services for smartphones and tablets in particular. As Japan's first "Internet Carrier", the Company plans to rollout "Y!mobile" (planned name) under the concept of "Delivering the Joy and Convenience of the Internet to Every Hand”.

While today's communication carriers are focusing on voice as their main service with Internet services as supplemental services, Y!mobile will be an “Internet Carrier” focusing on Internet services, with voice services as a supplementary offering. Through this, and by offering simple pricing plans, we aim to deliver the Internet to everyone.

Going forward, as we offer Internet services as an “Internet Carrier” to the users of post-merger eAccess's supported devices, we expect synergies with our current services, such as growing membership and membership revenues in our “Yahoo! Premium” service. In addition, as we promote increased usage of the Internet via smartphones, we will contribute to the growth of the Internet advertising, e-commerce and digital content markets, which will result in growth in the corporate value of the Yahoo Japan Group.

eAccess and SoftBank Mobile Corp. have concluded a business alliance regarding the reciprocal use, etc. of their mobile communication networks. Yahoo Japan's acquisition of eAccess will not have a significant impact on that business alliance.

In relation to Yahoo Japan's purchase of eAccess shares, the Company has appointed Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley Securities Co., Ltd. (hereinafter Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley) as its financial advisor and Nishimura & Asahi LPC as its legal advisor, in order to ensure prudent discussions and considerations are held regarding the appropriateness of the procedures and decision-making and regarding the enhancement of corporate value of the Yahoo Japan Group.

II. Refinancing of Intra-Group Loan

On June 2, 2014, the transfer date for the shares of eAccess, the Company plans to refinance the total amount of its portion of the intra-Group loans borrowed from SoftBank subsidiaries. The net interest bearing debt of eAccess (post WILLCOM merger) on the transfer date is expected to be about 230 billion yen, of which about 130 billion yen is the estimated amount of the loans from SoftBank subsidiaries subject to refinancing by Yahoo Japan Corporation.

III. Outline of Subsidiary to Be Transferred (eAccess)

VIII. Items Related to Transactions, etc. with Controlling Shareholders

(1) Qualification as Transaction, etc. with Controlling Shareholder and Compliance with Minority Shareholder Protection Policies

This transaction is between the Company and SoftBank, the Company's controlling shareholder (parent company). As such, Yahoo Japan Corporation recognizes it to be a transaction, etc. between itself and its controlling shareholder. In a corporate governance report issued on June 28, 2013, the Company included the following declaration on "Policies regarding the methods of protecting minority shareholders when a transaction, etc. occurs with the controlling shareholder."

Yahoo Japan Corporation's parent company is SOFTBANK Corp. The Company has endeavored to ensure fair and proper transactions between itself and its parent company, etc. by formulating "Rules regarding proper practices in transactions and business between the Company and its parent company, subsidiaries, and affiliates." The Company has clearly stipulated that it prohibits transactions with the parent company, etc. that are inappropriately advantageous or disadvantageous to either side in comparison with third-party transactions or similar transactions. The Company also prohibits transactions for which the sole purpose is to transfer profit, loss or risk.

The Company believes that the steps and measures taken to assure the fairness of the transaction and avoid conflict of interest are in compliance with the policies mentioned above as indicated in sections 2. and 3. below.

(2) Items Related to Steps Taken to Ensure Transaction Fairness and Avoid Conflict of Interest

The purchase of the shares of eAccess was vetted according to in-house regulations and procedures. Based on the results and the above policies, the Company's decision-making body, the Board of Directors, made a business decision to approve the purchase. Prior to the decision by the Board of Directors, the Company obtained an opinion from its independent advisory specialist, Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley, that as of March 26, 2014 the consideration to be paid for the shares in the transaction is fair from a financial point of view to Yahoo Japan Corporation ("Fairness Opinion"). The Company also obtained an opinion from its independent advisory specialist, Daiwa Securities Co. Ltd. (hereinafter Daiwa Securities), that as of March 26, 2014 the consideration to be paid for the shares in the transaction is fair from a financial point of view to Yahoo Japan Corporation ("Fairness Opinion").*<sup>6</sup> Moreover, from the point of view of avoiding conflicts of interest, SoftBank Chairman and CEO Masayoshi Son and SoftBank Representative Director Ken Miyauchi, who are also directors of Yahoo Japan Corporation, did not participate in the Company's Board of Directors meeting regarding this transaction. For the same reason, Yahoo Japan Corporation Representative Director Manabu Miyasaka, who is also a director of SoftBank, did not participate in Softbank's Board of Directors meeting regarding this transaction, although he did participate in the Company's Board of Directors meeting regarding this transaction.

(3) Outline of Opinion on Whether Transaction is not Disadvantageous to Minority Shareholders Obtained from Persons without Vested Interest in Controlling Shareholder

The Company has received an opinion that the purchase of the shares of eAccess is not disadvantageous to minority shareholders dated March 27, 2014 from its corporate auditors

Shingo Yoshii, Hiromi Onitsuka and Kyoko Uemura. These three corporate auditors are officially outside corporate auditors under Japanese law and have no vested interest in controlling shareholder SoftBank. Corporate auditor Mitsuo Sano, who is also a corporate auditor for SoftBank, did not take part in the process.

As part of their investigations to produce an opinion, corporate auditors Shingo Yoshii, Hiromi Onitsuka and Kyoko Uemura conducted meetings and necessary question and answer sessions with the Company's president, corporate officers, employees, etc. and examined necessary related materials. They carried out their investigations from the perspective of the purpose of the transaction, the negotiation and decision-making process, the fairness of the purchase price, and the growth in the corporate value of Yahoo Japan Corporation. The corporate auditors also requested an opinion on the transaction from Hideaki Sudo, an attorney at law with Tokyo Fuji Law Office, who has no vested interest in the controlling shareholder SoftBank.

As a result of their investigations, the corporate auditors expressed the opinion that:

- ① Regarding the purpose of the transaction: Given the expected substantial growth in Japan's smartphone market, the potential synergies from promoting the services of the Company's current businesses and from increasing the number of smartphone users, the advantage of eAccess being able to use the networks and equipment of the communications companies in the SoftBank Group following the current transaction, and the difficulties the Company would face in achieving its business goals through business alliances, etc., the transaction is in line with the strategies of the Company.
- ② Regarding the negotiation and decision-making process: The transaction was first begun based on the Company's proactive intention to increase its corporate value and was considered based on obtaining opinions on the value of the shares from multiple independent advisory specialists and commissioning reports from independent advisory specialists on both legal and accounting and tax implications prior to making a decision. No procedures were in violation of laws or regulations.
- ③ Regarding the fairness of the purchase price: The Company has obtained written opinions from its independent advisory specialists, Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa Securities, to the effect that as of March 26, 2014 the consideration to be paid for the shares in the transaction is fair from a financial point of view to Yahoo Japan Corporation ("Fairness Opinion").
- ④ Regarding the growth in corporate value: Given that the current transaction is consistent with the business strategies of the Company, there are no unreasonable conclusions in the business decision that the current transaction will contribute to increasing the corporate value of Yahoo Japan Corporation.

Among other points, the corporate auditors also stated in their opinions submitted to the Board of Directors of Yahoo Japan Corporation that based on the lack of special circumstances that worked in the favor of controlling shareholder SoftBank and to the detriment of the interests of minority shareholders, the transaction was not disadvantageous for minority shareholders.

Note 6: The opinions provided by each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa are based and premised on the various important conditions and disclaimers described in such opinions. The preconditions and disclaimers are as follows:

The opinions by each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa do not address any other aspects of the Transaction and are for the information of Yahoo’s board of directors. Neither Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley nor Daiwa recommended any specific purchase price to Yahoo or its board of directors or that any specific purchase price constituted the only appropriate purchase price for the Transaction.

In performing its analysis and delivering its opinion, each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa assumed and relied upon, without independent verification, the accuracy and completeness of the information that was publicly available or supplied or otherwise made available to it by Yahoo, SoftBank, eAccess and Willcom, and formed a substantial basis for its opinion and analysis. Yahoo explained to each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa that the purchase price was determined through arm's length negotiations between Yahoo and SoftBank and was approved by Yahoo's board of directors. Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley's and Daiwa's respective analyses and opinions and presentations of such opinions to Yahoo's board of directors were each only one of many factors taken into consideration by Yahoo's board of directors in deciding to approve the Transaction. Consequently, the opinions and analyses as the basis thereof should not be viewed as determinative of the opinion of Yahoo's board of directors with respect to the purchase price or of whether Yahoo's board of directors would have been willing to agree to a different purchase price.

Each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa has acted as financial advisor to Yahoo in connection with the Transaction and Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley will receive a fee for its services, a substantial portion of which is contingent upon the closing of the Transaction. Each of Mitsubishi UFJ Morgan Stanley and Daiwa and their respective affiliates may also seek to provide such services to Yahoo, SoftBank, the Target Company and their affiliates in the future and would expect to receive fees for the rendering of these services.
